Foe Jm Coetzee

Foe is a 1986 novel by South African-born Nobel laureate J. M. Coetzee. Woven around the existing plot of Robinson Crusoe, Foe is written from the perspective of Susan Barton, a castaway who landed on the same island inhabited by "Cruso" and Friday as their adventures were already underway. Like Robinson Crusoe, it is a frame story, unfolded as Barton's narrative while in England attempting to convince the writer Daniel Foe to help transform her tale into popular fiction. Focused primarily on th

Foe (Coetzee novel) - Wikipedia

FOE is J.M. Coetzee's updated twist of "Robinson Crusoe". ("Foe" was Daniel Defoe's surname at birth; he later fancied it.) FOE is the account of an Englishwoman, Susan Barton, about what happened on the South Atlantic island where Cruso (spelled by her without an "e") and Friday were marooned and how Daniel Foe came to write their story.

Foe Summary | GradeSaver

Coetzee's novel is all about metanarrative. That's played out in the conflict between Susan Barton and Foe, who is constantly trying to write a different story from the one Susan Barton wants him to write. In the passage above, Susan's really spelling it out for Foe. Why do you think he has such trouble understanding her point of view?
