Ralph Waldo Emerson - Oxford Reference

Ralph Waldo Emerson (b. 1803–d. 1882) was born in Boston to a family with deep roots in New England history. One of five brothers who survived childhood, he grew up in modest circumstances, and his mother was forced to take in boarders after the death of her husband in 1811. Following his graduation from Harvard in 1821, Waldo (as he preferred to be called) pursued careers as a teacher, divinity student, minister, and, finally, a writer and lecturer—a series of vocations all united by ...

Nature, by Ralph Waldo Emerson, is a superb nature essay and a philosophical interpretation of nature and how it influences man physically and spiritually. Emerson's writing is redolent with the wonder of the true romantic, but never sinks to the level of maudlin fluff. In the essay Emerson put forth the foundation of transcendentalism, a belief system that espouses a non-traditional appreciation of nature.
