The Tone Of A Paper

A tone of an essay is the way it sounds to a reader in general. In most cases, the tone depends on the purpose of your paper; for example, if you criticize something, your tone could be ironic, blaming, or sarcastic. So, whereas words convey meaning, the tone you choose conveys your attitude towards the subject you are writing about.

Tones in Writing | AcademicHelp.net

Tone in an essay is similar to the tone in a conversation. When conversing, you adopt different tones and speaking styles depending on the context in which you are speaking and on the person who you are speaking to. In the same way, a writer chooses a tone that is suitable to the topic of the essay and to the audience for whom he is writing.

How to Determine the Tone of an Essay | The Classroom

The audience and intentions of a research paper decide the tone. If your essay is going to be printed in a scholarly or didactic publication or reviewed by a college professor, a formal and succinct tone is best. Writing for a more leisurely and laid back audience calls for a more casual and conversational tone.

When drawing on a white paper, the brightest areas of the drawing remain as light as the paper. So, you can actually “just” get darker. A grey-toned paper is a neutral tone, in which we can work in both directions: in the dark areas of shadow and in the bright areas of light. The result is a realistic drawing which gives a 3-D feeling.
