Ian MacFarland's The Word Made Flesh: A Theology of the Incarnationproposes "a Chalcedonianism without reserve" that develops the best of Orthodox, Catholic, and Reformation christological traditions in lively conversation with contemporary biblical scholars and theologians (as well as philosophers and natural scientists). McFarland's book is a clear headed, imaginatively written, bold re-thinking of how Jesus Christ informs and upholds a clear distinction between Creator and ...

Another thing about Him: the Word made flesh, born in trial, born in temptation, born in agony and in tears, born in conflict. Verily He took not upon Him the nature of angels; but He took upon Him the seed of Abraham. In all things it behooved Him to be tried like His brethren, that He might be a faithful High Priest in our behalf unto God.
