being. The cross with its agonies, where the hero God man became sin. Perhaps the strangest feature of it all, was that not one person knew that He was dying for their sins, that He was bearing the penalty of their transgressions. Three days of gloom and darkness settled over the hearts of the disciples, the kingdom dreams were ended.

But in 630, Heraclius, the Emperor of the Byzantine Empire, had a resounding victory over the Persians, and triumphantly returned a part of the Cross to Jerusalem — the other part was left in...

What happened to the True Cross of Christ?

It has come to my attention that there are a variety of thoughts about what happened on the Cross. If we accept that the Old Covenant sacrificial system teaches us about the Messiah's sacrifice to come, we note that a lamb without blemish was killed to atone for the sins of Israel. (Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins.)

Timeline of Jesus' Death and Crucifixion

The True Cross is the name for physical remnants which, by the tradition of some Christian churches, are said to be from the cross upon which Jesus was crucified. According to post-Nicene historians such as Socrates of Constantinople, Empress Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine, the first Christian emperor of Rome, travelled to the Holy Land in 326–328, finding churches and establishing relief agencies for the poor. Historians Gelasius of Caesarea and Rufinus claimed that she discovered ...

True Cross - Wikipedia

The cross, in its simplest terms, was a substitution. Back in the Garden of Eden, mankind rebelled against God and decided to be god instead. That created a separation between God and man and that rebellion was so infectious that it spread from generation to generation, leading us to do all manner of things that are not like God.
